(Psalm 145)

FROM FR. JOE...

Way back in late February, I shared with you a plan: that we'd be singing two or three of the songs/responses at Mass in Latin for the Lent and Easter seasons. This was to (1) help us keep in touch with our roots as Roman Catholics and (2) help us prepare for significant changes in the English-language translation of the Mass which will take effect later this year. (You can learn more about these changes in the Roman Missal by reading the 10-week series of questions and answers now running in the bulletin.) When I got back from vacation, I spoke with some of our musicians and said, "You know, Lent and Easter are over, so we can go back to English now." The response I got was, "Do we really have to?" Their thinking: since the same tunes we have been using with the Latin will be the ones we will soon be using with new English words, why not keep the music fresh and on people's minds? So, our revised plan is to keep singing the Sanctus and Agnus Dei in Latin through the summer and fall...along with a familiar "Holy, Holy, Holy" and "Lamb of God" in English every now and again. We'll see how this goes! As always, I welcome your questions and comments.

To one and all: a very happy Independence Day!

PREPARING FOR THE ROMAN MISSAL, THIRD EDITION

A ten-week series of questions and answers about the new English language translation of the Mass

3. What's new or different about the revised translation?

The style of the translation of the third edition is different. In accord with the rules for translation established by the Holy See, the revised translation follows the style of the original Latin texts more closely, including concrete images, repetition, parallelisms, and rhythm. The English used in the Mass texts is more formal and dignified in style. Where possible, the texts follow the language of Scripture and include many poetic images. In addition, the third edition contains prayers for the celebration of recently canonized saints, additional prefaces for the Eucharistic Prayers, additional Masses and prayers for various needs and intentions, and some updated and revised rubrics (or instructions) for the celebration of the Mass.
